Mount St. Mary's College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin, age or handicap in the administration of its admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, or in its educational programs.

Hall marble floor, trustees are in "assigned positions."

They meet quarterly and are the governing board of the college; they make the major policy and finance decisions. Additionally, each trustee serves on a sub-committee of the board: executive, educational affairs, student life, development, finance, investment, or membership.

For identification, please see page 4.

With Thanks from

As we look to the future of Mount St. Mary's, the year 1989 already stands as a sturdy springboard for our next stage of growth, which will propel us into the 21st century. We can be proud at this critical juncture that the college has never been in a stronger position, thanks to a superb group of alumnae and other friends and benefactors—those of you in the broader community, as well as faculty, staff, and students—who help maintain the excellence for which the Mount has always been known.

Each creative, productive, and energetic one of you deserves credit for the achievements of these last 13 years during which I have been privileged to serve as president. Now, as my presidential responsibilities draw to a close, I look forward to participating in a new capacity to help assure the continued advancement of the college.

The administration and faculty in particular must be commended for their high level of achievement, which is based on the belief that each human being is capable of a great deal, that each has large and noble capacities, and that education is not an end in itself—but rather, a preparation for a life of service to the larger community and the living of a rich, full life that is itself preparation for eternity. No single person is responsible for the quality of programs at the college; we have all worked together for the same principles, and we all share the same vision of what is possible for students to attain.

The most important accomplishments here take place in the classroom. Simply put, that's where the magic happens, and that's what makes education authentic. It is this magic that draws first-rate faculty and students to the college, as well as attracting the generous support of donors. And it is this vital learning experience—this education for life—that we all strive to maintain, whatever our association with the Mount. The magic, however, does not occur in a vacuum, nor does it happen by chance. It will always need the highest level of support.

Authenticity is possible because we are firmly rooted in and committed to the liberal arts and sciences and are serious about being a Catholic college and a college primarily for women. Our size enables students to get to know faculty and for faculty to know students. And, in addition to emphasizing the values of a liberal education and service to the larger community, each college faculty member, student, and administrator shares other beliefs and experiences that promote an authentic life. First among these is living a life enriched by a personal faith dimension, one that values our relationship with God. One of the other ways that the Mount prepares students for living life is by giving them a solid background in the humanities, whose universally compelling quality provides solace, guidance, and joy.

This year, the Mount St. Mary's baccalaureate program was rated as "very competitive" by Barron's Guide to Colleges. We are proud to share this ranking with California's other two women's colleges, Scripps and Mills. Also high among our achievements are programs which enable students to engage in research with faculty mentors. Likewise, a large number of our graduates go on to distinguished graduate schools across the country, often with significant scholarships and grants.

We do have the luxury of three academic programs: the two-year associate degree, the traditional baccalaureate degree, and graduate study primarily in education, psychology, and religious studies. We take seriously the question of what best serves students, and endeavor to counsel our applicants into whichever of our programs best meets their needs.

I believe we are fortunate to be a women's college because young women come to us at a time of great vulnerability and social stress in their developing lives. Here they become self-confident and learn that it is all right for their intellectual and personal growth to take center stage. Out of our commitment to the education of women has come the development of the Women's Leadership Program. It is open to all students and can be taken as individual courses or as a sequenced minor. The program is designed to prepare women for leadership roles in society as a whole and thus stresses the importance of learning to deal with familial, social, professional, and other relationships.

From their first day in the leadership program, students work side by side with faculty and staff to put principles into practice, engage in group dynamics, and experiment with a new and challenging curriculum. Students soon gain a heightened sense of self-worth. They learn that power is not necessarily bad; that influence can be wisely used, as well as abused; and that participation is not only valuable but is indispensable in learning to lead others.

Creating new programs to meet changing demands is one sign of a vital educational institution, and the college has always stretched itself toward new possibilities. We are proud of the progress being made in enlarging the scope of religious studies opportunities for a master's degree. This is significant because one of the greatest challenges facing Catholic higher education institutions is that of preparing the laity to take leadership positions in the Church, as called for by the Second Vatican Council.

As we review the past years and look to those ahead, we can feel especially proud of two hallmarks of our excellence. One is the quality and accomplishments of our alumnae, who now number over 9,000. The second is our special success in welcoming New Americans to our campuses in a way that celebrates diversity and prepares them for participation in our society. We encourage these young women to retain a pride in their culture and ethnicity, thus enriching themselves and us as well.

Finally, a retrospective of these last 13 years would not be complete without recognizing the expansion in our facilities on both campuses:

the new dormitory, food service, and chapel at Doheny; and a new residence and parking structure on the Chalon campus.

As I complete this phase of my service to Mount St. Mary's, I feel confident that the momentum we have achieved together will continue. As long as we remain committed to the same values and true to our mission, the college will perdure. For my part, I will continue to work with the board of trustees, but on a full-time basis, to build basic support for the college and to increase the visibility of our many programs and services. The trustees are working out the details of this new role and I look forward to stepping into it.

With the continuing support of alumnae, parents, faculty, staff, students, and Mount St. Mary's many friends in the larger community, we face the future with great hope. To each and all, I say thank YOU. ■

Sister Magdalen Hosts Catholic Education Forum

"The Communal Charism of Catholic Education" was the topic of Father Edward Clark's keynote address at a winter meeting of educators from area high schools and colleges. Clark is on the staff of the archdiocesan education department.

Respondents to his remarks were: Sister Magdalen Coughlin; Father James Loughran, S.J., LMU president; Mrs. Nancy Coonis, St. Matthias principal, Huntington Park; and Brother Stephen Walsh, C.S.C., Notre Dame principal, Sherman Oaks.

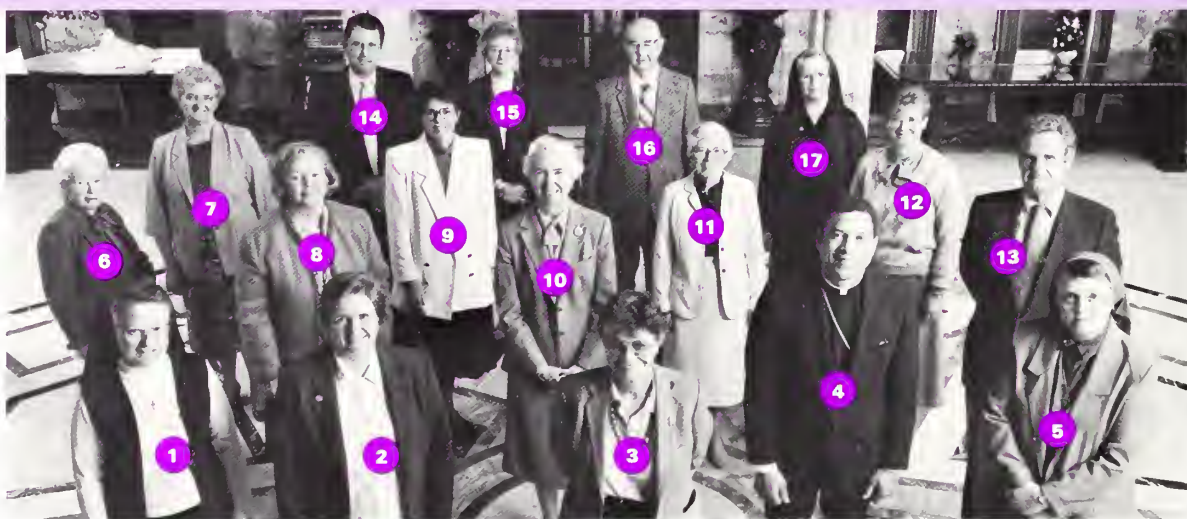

In her response Sister Magdalen highlighted the following:

Father Clark offers both well developed theory and practical guidance in his development and explication of "communal charism." He calls us, with some urgency, to examine how closely our schools come to being mature, Catholic, educational communities.

Father also suggests that "to integrate belief with human cultures is...to understand how the man or woman of faith understands and integrates into his or her life literature, science, history, mathematics, and all the other academic disciplines." It may also be helpful to see the understanding and then integration of insights provided by the arts and sciences into life as the process of education itself, and to see faith as both the illumination and texture of all reality.

As the process of education goes forward, this view of reality made possible by faith becomes richer and deeper. Thus, a first class education of a faith-filled human being, a realization of human potential, is clearly a central mode of contribution to the mission of Christ and the Church. ■

by Mariette Sawchuk

Where can you find four college presidents, the associate provost of UCLA's College of Letters and Science, an auxiliary bishop of Los Angeles, the highest ranking woman in archdiocesan administration, three corporate presidents, two high-powered attorneys and five provincial officers of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet? At a meeting of the board of trustees at Mount St. Mary's.

The seventeen board members bear the ultimate legal responsibility for operation of the college. Unfortunately, relatively few in the College community get to meet them. They reveal themselves to be intelligent, articulate and charming—strong and lively individuals who have excelled in their own diverse fields and who volunteer their service because they believe in the college.

If you could converse with them about their work for Mount St. Mary's, here are some discoveries you might make about the people who make up the board of trustees.

Sister Cecilia Louise Moore, chairman

President of the college from 1967 to 1976, Sister Cecilia Louise joined the board of trustees in 1977 and is now the chairperson. She has long been active in the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), the chief accrediting body for all academic institutions in California. Sister served on its board of directors from 1973 to 1976. She was the first woman and the first educator from a private school to chair WASC's accrediting commission for senior colleges and universities. Presently, Sister Cecilia Louise is director of the secretariat for educational and formational services for the Los Angeles archdiocese. As such, she is a member of Archbishop Mahony's cabinet, a seven member advisory council whose two women members are the highest ranking women in archdiocesan administration.

Sister Cecilia Louise values Mount St. Mary's fidelity to its origins: "The mission of the college has been supported and maintained over the years, yet the expression of that mission has been contemporary. The college is alive, changing and responsive to societal needs, but it has not been drawn away from its focused context for being." The role of the trustees, she believes, is to oversee major academic and administrative policy, evaluate key college personnel, guide decisions on investments, resource development and allocation, and ask the occasional tough question. She is proud of the board's work and highly respects the trustees who serve with her. "We have a strong proactive board, and its members are extremely dedicated and hard working. They care about the lives of the students."

Helen Astin

Helen Astin, who joined the board of trustees in 1985, is professor of higher education and associate provost of the College of Letters and Science at UCLA. She is also associate director of the Higher Education Research Institute. Dr. Astin has been active in the American Psychological Association serving as president of the division on the Psychology of Women, as chairperson of the association's task force on the Status of Women and as a member of numerous committees. In 1977 she was elected a fellow of the American Psychological Association. Her extensive publications include ten books, among which is The Power of Protest, winner of the Outstanding Book Award given by the journal Choice.

When trustee Rosemary Park introduced her to Sister Magdalen and the Mount, Astin was intrigued by the nature of the college. "I wanted to experience a small, Catholic women's college, to understand the dynamics of such an institution." Astin also saw connections between her work and the college's programs. "The exciting thing for me is the wonderful way the college is serving minorities, particularly Hispanic women, an area of interest for me. I also appreciate the Women's Leadership Program which is nicely based theoretically and empirically." She believes the college has an exciting opportunity to experiment and test theories about the education of low-income women and to continue innovative programming for them. Astin serves on the student life committee of the board of trustees. "I enjoy it because it puts me in direct touch with student needs." In order to meet and get to know faculty members she also chairs the faculty development committee, reviewing proposals for funds to support faculty research, travel, and curriculum development. "It is the board's job to listen to the administration, faculty and students, to challenge them and give them support."

Charles F. Bannan

President of the Pacific Western Foundation, Charles F. Bannan is a successful businessman committed to community service. A graduate of the University of Santa Clara, B.S. '37, he has been particularly generous to education, serving on advisory boards for Loyola High School, LMU, USC, and the University of Santa Clara.

Bannan became a supporter of the Mount when his daughter, Toni Bannan Gross, B.S. '67, majored in nursing. He is a long-time regent who joined the board of trustees in 1982. "As a regent, I recognized a great need to disclose to the public the facts about the college. It's one of the best kept secrets in Los Angeles!" Bannan is enthusiastic about many facets of Mount St. Mary's—its success with educationally disadvantaged young women, the strength of its administration, the excellent career preparation offered in nursing, physical therapy, business and other professional programs, and the centrality of the liberal arts. "I used to hire engineers directly out of college for my company's training program. After a while we found we had to send some of them back to college for courses in philosophy, history—the liberal arts."

Bannan serves on the finance committee because he sees strengthening the endowment as the college's greatest challenge, a challenge he is optimistic about. "L.A. is the greatest market in the country for students and contributions. It's just a matter of getting the word out."

Sister Magdalen Coughlin

As president of the college, Sister Magdalen is ex officio, a member of the board. An historian with a B.A. from the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minnesota and a Ph.D. from USC, Sister Magdalen loves to teach. As an administrator, she has traded in her immediate influence in the classroom for a broader, if more distant, educational role. "Being president has enabled me to contribute in ways I would not have otherwise had the opportunity to do." Contribute she has—not only to Mount St. Mary's, but to higher education throughout the United States. As board member of the American Council on Education, she has a national role in shaping the direction of collegiate education.

Frequently, Sister Magdalen finds herself in the middle—a representative of the college to the trustees and of the trustees to the college. This position could be delicate, but Sister has not found the balancing act difficult. "The board is very supportive and engaged. They are very clear about our mission: our commitment to quality, the value of the liberal arts, the Catholic nature of the college, the education of women and our orientation to service. They don't ask useless questions, nor are they a rubber stamp. Their responses to issues are very helpful." She has a simple rule for keeping the trustees informed. "I tell them about everything going on in the college that I find interesting." To keep communications flowing, she attends all board and committee meetings. "From the beginning," Sister Magdalen says, "it's been a team effort. The trick is to surround yourself with people smarter than you."

The trustees are unanimous in their praise for Sister Magdalen's administration, and many cite her as one reason they accepted a place on the board. Sister, herself, is characteristically humble about her accomplishments. "It's God's work," she says. "If the college is a success it's His success."

Jerome E. Farley

Jerome Farley earned a B.A. degree from the University of Notre Dame in 1959 and a J. D. from Loyola University School of Law in 1973. A member of the California Bar, he is president of a property development corporation and teaches occasionally in the MBA program of Pepperdine University's School of Business and Management.

Farley was introduced to Mount St. Mary's by trustee emeritus Frank Moothart, then his boss. "He arranged for me to have lunch with Sister Cecilia Louise and Bill Dozier. When lunch was over, I was a regent." In the fall of 1985, Sister Magdalen asked him to join the board of trustees. Farley agreed because "I believe strongly in the value of Catholic education. Each of us owes an obligation to give something back to institutions that helped us. My charitable contributions go to Catholic education." In addition to serving as trustee and regent of the Mount, he is also an associate of the University of Notre Dame, Loyola University School of Law, LMU and Creighton University.

He believes his role as a trustee is to serve as a resource for the administration. "As a lay person and a businessman, I have experience in fields different from the Sisters and educators on the board. That experience can be very useful to the administration in formulating plans and anticipating problems. Sometimes I can help shape a policy in ways it might not otherwise be shaped. But don't get me wrong. The board works together. I'm just a soldier, not a general."

Bishop Carl A. Fisher

Bishop Fisher, of the Josephite Fathers, an auxiliary bishop of the Los Angeles diocese, is the first black Catholic bishop in the history of the Western United States. Before coming to Los Angeles, he served in a variety of administrative and pastoral positions. He was the first black pastor of historic St. Francis Xavier parish in Baltimore, the nation's oldest black Catholic church, founded in 1793 by slaves and free men and women of color. In addition to graduate study in theology at Oblate College of Washington, D.C., Bishop Fisher earned a Master of Science degree from the American University in Washington, D.C. and studied electronic communications at Loyola University of the South in New Orleans. Among his many national awards for public service, he was named "Catholic Communications Scholar of the Year" in 1973.

Bishop Fisher is frequently asked to serve on the board of directors of colleges, universities and community service organizations. Because of his heavy commitments, he usually turns down such requests. When he toured the Doheny campus at Sister Magdalen's invitation, however, he saw the success which minority students were achieving at Mount St. Mary's and agreed to serve on the college's board of trustees. He believes the trustees have a "sacred role" to ensure that the college serves disadvantaged students of all ethnic groups. "In the next ten years, I hope the college will strengthen its outreach to young women who are the first in their families to aspire to higher education. As time goes on, I hope they will send their own children to Mount St. Mary's."

Because he cares deeply about the needs of students, he serves on the student life committee. When his schedule takes him in the neighborhood of the Doheny campus, he drops in at the Ahmanson Commons without fanfare to eat lunch and talk informally with students. He listens to their struggles, disappointments, successes and hopes and tries to imbue them with his own philosophy, "Do the best you can, and leave the rest to God."

Sister Karen M. Kennelly

Sister Karen Kennelly has just completed a term as province director for the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, St. Paul. An historian with a Ph.D. from UC Berkeley in 1962, Sister Karen's interests range widely from medieval Spain to the women of the midwest. A Fulbright fellowship for post-doctoral research and an American Council of Learned Societies fellowship financed her study in Spain which led to publications in English and Spanish on religiously inspired truces in medieval Spain. She spent the fall of 1988 traveling and doing research in Peru on evolving concepts of mission and evangelization in religious congregations of women and is currently at St. John's College in Minnesota writing and lecturing.

Sister Karen became familiar with Mount St. Mary's during her service as executive director of the National Federation of Carondelet Colleges from 1979 to 1982 and agreed to join the Mount's board of trustees in 1987 because of her strong commitment to women's colleges. She has published several articles on the founders of women's colleges, including Sister Antonia McHugh and Mary Molloy. Her understanding of the history of women's colleges and the philosophy on which they are based is an asset to the board of trustees as it seeks to define the Mount's role in the 1990's.

Sister Catherine Marie Kreta

Sister Catherine Marie Kreta, provincial superior of Carondelet Sisters in the Los Angeles province, graduated from Mount St. Mary's in 1961. Although she went on to earn an M.A. in educational administration from CSU Northridge, her undergraduate experience profoundly influenced her ideas about education. "I really appreciated the highly qualified professors who embodied what it means to be an educated person. They drew out the best from me intellectually, socially, spiritually and morally in a warm, personal and loving manner. As a trustee, I want to see that the college continues to give that kind of education."

Sister Catherine Marie believes that one of the college's special strengths is its commitment to the education of women. "Women have another mode of being and acting that is complementary to men's. Mount St. Mary's draws out the latent talents of young women and gives them the time and opportunity to develop their own leadership style, free from patronizing or put downs. The Women's Leadership Program is particularly helpful in empowering students to contribute their own gifts in their own ways."

Sister believes the board of trustees is another Mount strength. "I am impressed by the way the trustees, particularly the lay trustees, give lovingly and faithfully of their time and talents. They love the college and the students."

Sister Catherine Therese Knoop

An economist with a doctorate from UC Berkeley, Sister Catherine Therese has always been interested in the social and ethical dimensions of her science. Today she is combining these interests at Daniel Murphy High School where she directs campus ministry and also teaches economics. She began teaching at the Mount in 1957 and has played many roles at the college, including faculty member, chair of the business and economics department, dean of the graduate division, and director of institutional research. The last job, and her own penchant for observation, has given her a good overview of the ways in which student interests and career aspirations have changed over the years from education and the humanities to professional preparation such as nursing, business and physical therapy.

While students are no longer required to take one religion course a semester as they did when Sister Catherine Therese first came to the college, she believes that the Mount's fidelity to a curriculum rich in philosophy, religious studies and the humanities ultimately helps students in their professional and personal lives and keeps the college strong. Sister thinks her role as a trustee is "to ask important questions of persons close to the operation of the college—factual questions and ethical questions—to keep the college faithful to its mission, particularly in philosophy and goal setting."

J. Thomas McCarthy

J. Thomas McCarthy is a partner with the law firm of Bodkin, McCarthy, Sargent and Smith. A graduate of USC (A.B. 1953, LL. B. 1956), he was admitted to plead before the Supreme Court in 1980. He is also a member of the board of trustees of Farmers Group, Inc., Farmers New World Life Insurance Company and California Hospital Center for Health, Education and Research. His daughter, Kathleen Ann, a graduate of the University of Puget Sound, is earning her California teaching credential in the Mount's education program.

McCarthy learned about Mount St. Mary's when he was chairman of the board of the Leavey Foundation which donated money to the nursing scholarship program. At Sister Magdalen's invitation, he visited the college and was "particularly impressed that the college didn't hide or temper its Catholic nature." Looking to the future, he anticipates no major changes. "Mount St. Mary's is doing a great job carrying out its mission. The only problems I foresee in the next five to ten years are those that beset all private education: the battle with rising costs and the need to recruit and retain students from a smaller applicant pool."

David L. McIntyre

Introduced to the college by his wife Norma Marcus McIntyre '57, David L. McIntyre serves as regent, trustee and chairman of the development committee. A graduate of USC, McIntyre is president of the Fremont Indemnity Company and has been active in many professional and community organizations, including the governing committee of the California Workers' Compensation Insurance Rating Bureau, the board of directors of Insight, Paulist Productions, and the board of directors of Harvard School, to name only a few.

The Mount, however, has his special allegiance. "I get more pleasure from being on the board of Mount St. Mary's College than from anything I've ever done." He is enthusiastic about the way the college has responded to community needs. "The college is a reflection of southern California's population, and many students are the first in their families to attend college. We're doing a great job educating these young women and that's worth getting excited about." To insure that the college can continue to offer an education to young women regardless of economic background, he believes increased financial aid must be available and sees his role on the development committee as his most important contribution.

Sister Judith Murphy

Sister Judith Murphy, general counsel for the Archdiocese of Los Angeles, is an attorney (University of Idaho School of Law, J. D. 1981) with a master's degree in nursing (UC, San Francisco, 1971). She has combined these disparate fields by working on behalf of the physically handicapped and was awarded the 1981 Corpus Juris Secundum Award for significant legal scholarship in handicap law. In recent years she has specialized in corporate law, first as an associate attorney in the law firm of Brandlin and McAllister, and currently with the Archdiocese of Los Angeles. A graduate of the Mount's nursing department, she believes the liberal arts foundation, especially the skills in critical thinking and writing, helped her make the transition from nursing to law.

Sister Judith serves on the student life committee of the board of trustees because "we must always keep in mind the real reason we are here—the students." She thinks "Mount St. Mary's has a viable role to play enabling women who haven't previously had access to higher education, to move into areas of leadership." The trustees, in Sister's opinion, serve the college by supporting and challenging the administration. "We provide checks and balances to the administration, and bring a new perspective to major policy issues. The trustees, therefore, always have to consider what qualities we want to develop in our graduates when we decide on the policies that shape their education and environment."

Rosemary Park

Rosemary Park, a graduate of Radcliffe College, holds a Ph.D., magna cum laude, from the University of Cologne, Germany. She has been awarded honorary degrees from many institutions including Mount Holyoke, Yale, Brown, Columbia, Goucher, Oberlin, Colby and Middlebury. During her distinguished academic career, she served as president of Barnard College before becoming vice chancellor for planning, and then for student and curricular affairs, at UCLA. She has influenced educational policy on a national level serving on the president's commission on the Status of Women, and advisory councils for the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Danforth Foundation, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and many others.

Park became interested in Mount St. Mary's when she served on various boards with Sister Magdalen. She agreed to join the board of trustees in 1979 because she recognized that "something unique" was going on at the college. "First, I thought the two campuses were an interesting experiment. I wondered how one administration could manage two totally different sites. I was impressed by the number of minority students who enrolled and even more by the number who graduated, the Mount's success rate is quite unusual. Finally, I believe in the combination of liberal arts and professional training." Park serves on the educational affairs and executive committees of the board. She believes one of the college's greatest challenges is to preserve its commitment to the liberal arts and to articulate the value of the liberal arts to students and parents.

Sister Mary Allen Rosholt

Sister Mary Allen, province budget director for the Carondelet Sisters in the Los Angeles province, is concerned with the bottom line—both the financial outcome of decisions and the impact of those decisions on human life. She graduated from Mount St. Mary's in 1964 with a major in business administration and an elementary teaching credential, an unusual combination which has made her effective both in the classroom and as an administrator.

She earned an M.S. in administration at Notre Dame University in 1980.

She believes a critical task of the board is to ask how policies or proposed programs fit the mission of the college. "We must also look at the means by which policies are implemented to make sure they respect the dignity of each person in the college community. If we're only interested in the bottom line," she says, "and not the people, especially the poor, whom our decisions affect, we're not fully human."

A member of the executive and finance committees, Sister hopes the college will expand its influence in the lives of young women of southern California, particularly those educationally disadvantaged who might not succeed elsewhere. "I see our graduates having a growing influence on business, child care, the health care professions and the Church in Los Angeles. I hope the college will continue its collaboration with health care agencies and high schools. I hope it will continue to look for the needs of the community and help fill them in creative ways."

Marjorie Downing Wagner

Marjorie Downing Wagner came to Mount St. Mary's for the first time in 1976 as chair of the WASC accrediting committee and returned later that year to give the keynote address at Sister Magdalen's inauguration. She was dean of the faculty and professor of English at Scripps College. After earning a law degree from Chapman College to add to her doctorate from Yale, she became president of CSU Sonoma, from 1974–76. Until her recent retirement, she was vice chancellor of faculty-staff affairs at CSU Long Beach.

Wagner agreed to join Mount St. Mary's board of trustees in 1979. Although she had earned her bachelor's degree at a Catholic institution, the College of Mount St. Vincent in New York, she was surprised by the Mount. "It was very different both in quality and attitude from my undergraduate college and that interested me. I was also impressed by the leadership of Sister Magdalen." An educator with experience of many colleges and universities, she believes that Mount St. Mary's has many strengths. "The college is consciously and actively Catholic at a time when that is not easy to do. It is tremendously successful with minority students while state institutions, despite all their money and good will, have terrible attrition rates among black and Hispanic students." Chair of the board's educational affairs committees, Wagner is particularly proud of the faculty handbook which her committee worked to develop. She does, however, see areas of challenge ahead, particularly the need to strengthen the liberal arts and the pre-professional programs. "Mount St. Mary's is fortunate to have strong administrative leadership and an energetic, devoted and generous board—all of whom believe in the liberal arts."

Sister Mary Williams

Sister Mary holds a bachelor's degree from the College of St. Catherine in Minnesota, and a Ph.D. from Stanford University. Currently a Carondelet regional superior, she is an associate professor of English and has served as chair of the English department, and academic dean. Sister Mary sees great vitality in the college. "I think a growing strength of the college is its ability to attract a multi-ethnic student body including many first generation college students. That gives the Mount an important role to play in the future of Los Angeles. The ability to assess and respond to current needs is a hallmark of the Sisters of St. Joseph, and it's wonderful to see the college acting in that tradition."

Sister Mary believes that the role of the trustees is to support, facilitate and challenge the administration. Although the trustees must not entangle themselves in day-to-day management, they can be the catalyst for useful change. "I'm chair of the student life committee where very interesting developments have occurred. We discovered, for example, that there had been relatively little communication between the Chalon and Doheny campuses in the area of student development. We encouraged a lot of fruitful talking and coordination between Kathy Allen, dean for student development at Chalon, and Jane Lingua, assistant dean at the Doheny campus." In the future, Sister Mary predicts a continuing evolution. "I think that the Doheny programs will continue to increase in importance, that the mean age of students will increase, and that students will be more interested in the liberal arts. I'm excited."

Sister Barbara Joseph Wilson

Sister Barbara Joseph, a supervisor of secondary schools for the archdiocesan department of education, holds a B.S. from Mount St. Mary's, a master's degree in education (emphasis: instructional media) from CSU Long Beach, and a California administrative services credential. She credits her undergraduate education with developing her capacity for organization and writing.

Sister joined the board in the fall of 1981 to bring her perspective on high school graduates to the trustees' deliberations. She believes that increasing the endowment is a major issue facing the college and, therefore, serves on the development committee. "It's important to have financial aid available for all who need it: not only the poor, but struggling middle-class families who want a Catholic education for their children." Part of the job of a trustee is to keep the Mount true to its mission. For Sister, that means affirming the Catholic nature of the college. "In building enrollment and in serving ethnic communities, we need not lose the Catholic thrust of the college. We must bolster the faith community so that Christian values permeate the environment."

No profile of the board of trustees would be complete without acknowledging the outstanding services generously given the college by its two trustees emeriti:

Francis Robert Moothart

Frank Moothart became acquainted with Mount St. Mary's when his oldest daughter, Judy Moothart Hutchison, B.S. '68, enrolled. Subsequently, his two younger daughters, Rosemary Moothart Costales, B.A. '70, and Kathleen Moothart, also attended the college.

When Moothart agreed to serve on the board of trustees in 1969, he was one of its first lay members. He brought his extensive financial and management expertise to bear on difficult issues of resource allocation and endowment development facing the college in the 70's and 80's. During the recent years of building on both campuses, his assistance with the complex business problems arising during the actual construction was invaluable. In addition to his work on the board of trustees, Moothart is also a longstanding member of the regents council.

Joseph Robert Vaughan

Joseph Robert Vaughan, attorney and president of the Tom and Valley Knudsen Foundation, has a long history of community service paralleling his distinguished business career. He has been particularly supportive of education, serving as a member of Loyola Law School's board of visitors, director of the Independent Colleges of Southern California and director of Daniel Freeman Hospital.

Vaughan has been both a regent and a trustee of Mount St. Mary's, serving on the board from 1979-1983. During his tenure, he was liaison between the college and the José Drudis family and was the architect of the José Drudis-Biada Charitable Lead Trust, which is bringing $3,100,000 to the Mount over eleven years. J. R. Vaughan remains a regent and warm friend of the college. ■

President's scholars Jeanne Yugar, Michelle Huddleston, trustee chairman Sister Cecilia Louise, Jacqueline Garcia, Mary Hodges.

Refurbishing Your Office?

*Mount St. Mary's College can put to good use office furnishing and equipment you may be replacing with newer models. Your charitable donation of
used furniture—
desks, chairs, files,
etc.; and equipment
such as word processors, computers,

Fashion Splash '89

The Alumnae Fashion Show Luncheon is set for April 22 at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. The committee is very proud to announce that highlighting the luncheon will be the renowned designer, Luis Estevez, who will present his fashion extravaganza. His dazzling ball gowns and cocktail dresses have graced the figures of such stars as Eva Gabor, Linda Evans, and Catherine Oxenberg, as well as Nancy Reagan and Betty Ford of political scene. This designer has been cited in Life, Time Magazine, and Newsweek in addition to many fashion magazines. His boutique, "Estevez," is located on Melrose Avenue in Hollywood. Modeling his collection will be the Mannequins of the Assistance League of Southern California. Come for a spectacular Splash '89.

The College Applauds Future Alumnae

Four seniors are in the throes of completing honors theses. Each thesis is a self-designed interdisciplinary study in which the student works with two members of the faculty.

Topics this year focus on the four disciplines in which the students are majoring. Philosophy and sociology provide the interdisciplinary approach.

Michelle Benson's thesis is a study of Blaise Pascal: mathematician and philosopher; while Christine Cummings is deciding whether the situation in Nicaragua is self-determination or U.S. imperialism.

As a psychology major, Lisa Overby is studying children's concepts of war and racism; and physical therapy major Barbara Vogtmann is considering the philosophy of medicine.

Josette Temple, Marianne Hinsberger Horan, and Mary Ann Garijfo Sadler of the class of '58 bring each other up to date during 30th reunion.

'44 Mary Pat Hansen Brush enjoyed her husband's college reunion in Hanover, NH, as well as a family reunion with her nine grandchildren this past summer in Green Lake, WI.

MARGARET HORST

Alumnae, faculty, and friends gather on the Chalon Chapel Terrace for Founders Day '88.

'51 Experiencing her first cruise, Rosemary Schuler Dvorak traveled to the Orient and Java Seas. Highlights of her trip included viewing a solar eclipse from the ship and hiking through the Malaysian jungle.

'54 Barbara Walsh Hughes is currently working in membership sales for the Anaheim Visitor and Convention Bureau.

'55 Mary Reimann Kennick of San Mateo shares the big news; her husband retired and her son was married this summer.

'55 Serving her second year as president of the Friends of the View Park Library in Los Angeles is Barbara Williams Johnson. Barbara is also pleased that her only daughter has returned to California following her college graduation.

'56 Carol Weldy Spalluto used the gift certificate she won at the alumnae fashion show to treat herself and her husband to an anniversary dinner.

'57 Myra Pestana Silversparre, happy grandmother of two, completed a nursing refresher course at Azusa University/Queen of the Valley in West Covina.

'59 In addition to being a "farm wife" in Hartland, MN, Kathleen Halloran Koziolk is completing her masters in teaching home economics at Mankato State University. She has also been a graduate teaching assistant, a leader in 4-H for ten years, and a server for the papal storeroom.

'60 Claudia Birdsong Ramsey has worked for the past 14 years as a school nurse. Prior to that, she was a staff nurse while raising her five children. Claudia now serves on the teen pregnancy committee and is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma near her home in Coalinga.

'63 In her work assisting visitors at Yosemite and Mariposa Parks, Joan M. Kays utilizes her training as a reference librarian and social service worker, as well as a large amount of tact psychology.

'64 "My niece Noel is really enjoying the Mount," writes Jeanne Treacy Trudeau. "She even stayed in my old suite in Carondelet!" Noel is the daughter of Marie Treacy Mastandrea '62.

'64 Margarita Samaniego is active in her parish, studying music and voice and ministering to the elderly.

'66 Kathy Cole Smith, whose husband is self employed and whose children are all school age, has returned to study for a masters in education and pre-administrative credential at CSULA. She teaches fourth grade with city schools and is also a mentor teacher.

'66 Anna Pineda Carrillo, married for 21 years and mother of four, has recently completed her masters in education at CSULA. She has been teaching ESL for the past six years.

'67 Following her trip to East Africa, Shari Pieczarka Duron is continuing her work towards a doctorate in organizational behavior.

'67 Happily working as an illustrator for JPL in Pasadena, Karen Fraser Schoeni has five grown children, one new grandson, and teaches Sunday school.

'71 Heidi Galasso Muth and her husband Lynn were both honored to be in the papal choir during the Pope's visit to Los Angeles last year.

'74 Elaine Priest Zapf has traveled to Mexico, Europe and the East Coast. "All the hard work of recent years is beginning to pay off!" Elaine's career in graphic design now includes desk top publishing and she has plans to resume her freelance calligraphy business.

'75 In addition to her part time travel work, Lynne Crevier Morrisette is a volunteer with the American Red Cross Disaster Services as the coordinator of disaster volunteers in the Santa Clarita Valley. Lynn enjoyed a visit with Judy Tensfeldt Rice '75, at Judy's home in Arkansas.

'78 Cynthia A. Przytula is currently the administrative assistant to the CEO of H.F. Ahmanson, serves on the board of directors of Legal Aid Foundation of Long Beach and is a client representative for Su Casa—a shelter for battered women.

'79 Marilyn Armstrong Belanic is in her second year as a school nurse at Pioneer High School in Whittier while she pursues her masters degree in health science at CSULA.

'80 Anna Louise Toth is working as a volunteer in small villages all over Kenya with women's groups and has established an export business with the women's handiwork.

'81D Sandra Bolton received her juris doctor from Western State University College of Law, Fullerton. While in law school, Sandra participated in Law Review and was a recipient of a dean's scholarship.

'84 Newlywed Fiona McGinty Engler has bought a house in Santa Monica and is back teaching with LAUSD and working on her special education degree at the Mount.

'85 Carla Ruiz gave a presentation on "Manual Therapeutic Intervention for Facial Burns" at the California Chapter Conference of the American Physical Therapy Association in Monterey, in October.

'86 Veronica O'Connell works in a locked adolescent psychiatric unit of Cedars Sinai Hospital. She is planning to start her masters program in psychiatric nursing at UCLA next year.

'86 Patricia Corrales, a second-year student at the University of Colorado Law School, was awarded a fellowship to work as a summer intern for the Legal Aid Society of Denver. Patricia is the secretary of the Hispanic Law Caucus, a member of the Women's Law Caucus and a volunteer with the homeless. The award is in recognition of her commitment to serving the indigent.

'86 Shauna Weeks is presently in her third year of law school at USC. This summer she clerked for Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher at their New York, Century City and Los Angeles offices. Upon completing her first year at law school she graded on to Law Review. Last month she accepted a firm-wide offer from Gibson and will be working in their New York office after she graduates in May.

'87 Sheryl Hutchings is the educational services coordinator for the Alabama Shakespeare Festival.

Alumnae who have represented the college at official functions are:

SISTER ANNE MARIE

On the Double for Chemistry—Barbara Dummel Brunner '63 is the first alumna to take out an insurance gift policy. By contributing $500 this year and for the next four, and having her contribution doubled by her employer, Brunner has established a fund ultimately worth $50,000 to the college's endowment fund.

Above, she is pictured, middle, in the chemistry lab with architects of the insurance program, Walter Puth and Laverne Harris '77. Brunner's gift will be used to benefit the chemistry department, where she majored while at the Mount.

'89 Wednesday Speakers

Social responsibility is the theme for the 1989 spring semester Wednesday series events. Covering the fields of health care, business, education, and science, speakers will reflect on how they have acted to help others through their work. Time slot is 1:10–2:40 p.m.

Faculty will teach related classes to explore these issues in depth: at the Doheny campus, "Our Neighbor's Keeper: a Film's Eye View," with Sister Joseph Adele; and "A Contemporary Perspective of the 1960's Civil Rights Movement," with Walter Draude.

On the Chalon campus, Sister Annette will offer "Science: the Future Is Here"; Peter Antoniou and Katherine Whitman, "Is Good Business Bad Business?"; Helen Deese, "The Theme of Social Responsibility in Current Drama"; and Sister Teresita, "Social Responsibility in the Arts." Reservations by phone.

Want to Visit China?

The Alumnae Association hopes to determine if there is sufficient interest among alumnae, parents, students and friends to plan a college tour of China in May/June of 1990, to be led by Sister Kathleen Kelly, whose doctorate specializes in Chinese history.

Please indicate interest by completing the following and returning it to MSMC Magazine, 12001 Chalon Rd., L.A. 90049.

HOLIDAYS Our Way

▲ December days see psych major Joanne Kennedy emerging from her custom-designed loft in Brady dorm. Her petting zoo of toys, collected for the campus ministry children's drive, will have new homes by Christmas.

◀ It's a largo from Loeillet's Sonata in E-minor for Two Flutes and Piano. And the Yuletide players are David Wright, Tina Fischer and Yun Yi—all are Mount residents and music majors.

SCOTT LUTHER WINSTON / MEMORY LANE

Christmas Fair at Doheny is advertised by ASB president Renée Ochoa, for creative students marketing their own wares. ▶
